Q: How to decode something like 'who_m_today' in base64 via Python? I have the following variable in my Django view: ... who_m_today = base64.b64decode(request.raw_post_data['user_id']) ... Which is something like: {"user_id": "eyJh...13ae4w3W4O"} I need to decode the variable "who_m_today" to the user who is logged in now. As I have written, my base64 is something like this:

eyJh...13ae4w3W4O I tried this following way: ... who_m_today = base64.b64decode(request.raw_post_data['user_id']) ... Who = urllib.parse.unquote(who_m_today) Logged = urllib.parse.unquote(Logged) id = urllib.parse.unquote(id) now = time.strftime("%Y-%m-%d %H:%M:%S") print(Now) if now == Logged: user = User.objects.get(pk=id) print('Who m OLD', user) else: user = User.objects.get(pk=id) print('Who m NEW', user) Problem is that all is fine but the user couldn't be logged in, if the ID is "eyJh...13ae4w3W4O". I checked the ID with the debug mode and it shows the ID in fact so I am not an issue of the ID but the Base64(which is like a hex or byte) decoding. What should I do to fix this issue? A: According to your description, the problem is not the Base64 decoding, so we can comment out the base64.b64decode in your code. The problem is the logic in the if clause. Judging from the description of the code, you want to do something like following: who_m_today = base64.b64decode(request.raw_post_data['user_id']) if now
