A mitomycin-C (MMC)-resistant T-cell line (T-MMC) was established from a C57BL/6-derived mouse thymoma, M-7, which was originally sensitive to MMC. Ten successive subclones of T-MMC were selected and resistant to MMC-induced neoplastic transformation. Ten sequential drug treatments were carried out on the resistant T-MMC subclones and the transformation of the cells was examined. Ten of the subclones transformed to the neoplastic stage with all the combinations of drug treatment, while the other five did not transform. This study evaluated the ambient air pollution-asthma risk associations in the general population of Beijing, China. Air quality data were obtained from the Beijing Environmental Protection Bureau. Meteorological data were provided by Beijing Meteorological Bureau. The CHARN study participants, who worked in the Beijing area, were divided into two groups (cases and controls) using the random ratio method. The variables included in the present study were PM10, SO2, and NO2. The Spearman's correlation analysis of air pollutants showed that PM10 had a positive correlation with SO2 and NO2 and with Sulfate and nitrate; SO2 had a positive correlation with NO2; SO2 and NO2 were positively correlated with each other. Multiple logistic regression analysis adjusted for potential confounders showed that the odds ratio (OR) of work-related asthma in people living in areas with PM10 levels of more than 75 µg/m3 was 2.50 (95% confidence interval [CI]: 1.06-6.02), compared with people living in areas with lower PM10 levels. The ORs in people living in areas with SO2 and NO2 levels of more than 30 µg/m3 were 1.57 (95% CI: 1.03-2.41) and 1.59 (95% CI: 1.04-2.41), respectively, compared with people living in areas with lower SO2 and NO2 levels. There was no significant association between risk of work-related asthma and pollutants levels for either the cases or the controls. The ambient air pollution levels in Beijing are associated with an increased risk of work-related asthma. These findings suggest that compliance with existing air quality standards should be maintained and that further efforts should be made to improve air quality in Beijing.This invention relates to hinged closures for containers and in particular to a closure which
